COUNT BONI GUILTY, IS SENTENCED TO PAY PRINCE TWENTY CENTS

Decision of Same Court Inflicts a Twenty-Dollar Fine Upon Anna Gould's Ex-Husband for Criminal Assault.

PARIS, Feb. 11.—Six drops of the Prince de Sagan's blood and a lapis lazuli bump over the right eye cost Count Boni de Castellane one hundred and one francs (approximately $20.20); wherefore it may be claimed that the Prince's blood is worth about $3 a drop and the lapis lazuli "shiner" $2. The Court which imposed the fine and awarded the damages to-day, failed to throw in anything for anguish.

The famous assault case was finally disposed of in the Correctional Court. The learned jurists found Count Boni guilty of criminal assault and fined him. At the same time they awarded Prince Helie de Sagan one franc damages, which was all he claimed.
